"ARIZONA" A GREAT PLAY.

"Greater Arizona" has proven that it possesses greater drawing powers than any other of the big scenic productions which have been given at Mr. Gilmore's Academy of Music. Since the night of the production, the crowds have been limited only by the number of seats in the house.

"Arizona" is certainly the most elaborate military spectacle ever seen upon the stage of a New York theatre, as it is one of the strongest, cleanest and best plays that have come from the pen of any American author within two decades past. It is the most perfect play that has ever been written by Augustus Thomas. Olive May, J. W. Cope, Dustin Farnum, Grace Thorne, Edgar Selwyn and William Haworth have established themselves as prime favorites with the patrons of the Academy.

There are few sporting men of Pawtucket, R. I., who do not patronize the Capitol Cafe and bar, corner of Slater and Capitol streets. The Capitol is owned by G. O. Chapitt, who is a practical saloonman, and who makes it a point to keep the best brands of liquors behind his bar.

He is very much of a sport himself and there are few events on the card at which he is not present. He has a large following in Pawtucket, and his business is one of the most successful in the city.

SNATCHED FROM BED.

A Daring Kidnapper of Vincennes, Ind., Gets a Crimp Put in Him.

The town of Vincennes, Ind., has been having a little excitement lately in the shape of a kidnapper scare. The last man to try to steal humanity broke into a house in the fashionable quarter of the city and attempted to carry away a thirteen-year-old daughter. She was lying on a bed in a well-lighted room, and had just prepared for the night when a man entered, picked her up and started for the door. She screamed, attracting the attention of her parents in the next room. They reached the door just as the man went out of the gate, and the father leaped after him. Seeing escape with the child was out of the question, the thief dropped her, jumped into a buggy and drove rapidly away. A good description was obtained, but he got a good start and capture is uncertain.

PUNCHED THE BLONDE.

Havoc Caused by the Flirt of a Dainty Brunette in Oakland, Cal.

As the result of a street fight between two school girls over the attentions of a young man, one of the girls, a brunette, aged 17 years, was sentenced in the Oakland, Cal., police court to pay a fine of $5 on pleading guilty to a charge of battering her erstwhile friend and schoolmate, a charming blonde.

It appears that the former left her home in East Oakland on Sunday evening to attend church. On Broadway she spied her blonde rival walking arm in arm with a young man with whom she has also been keeping company.

Several hours later she again met her, but this time alone, and in the heated argument the two young ladies indulged in fighting. The brunette is said to have struck out an uppercut, nearly knocking her fair rival off her feet. A crowd gathered to witness the feminine combat, but just then Chief of Police Hodgkins appeared on the scene and after the scattered hats and hatpins and trinkets were capitulated, the chief trotted the fair fighter to the city prison, but she was immediately released on $6 cash bail.

The two young women met face to face in court when sentence was passed, and they looked daggers at each other, but the whipped one tarried long after her pugilistic rival had paid her fine and departed.

TRUANT SPOUSE CHASED BY ANGRY SOUBRETTE WIFE THROUGH SALT BILLOWS

She Ruined Her Handsome Costume, But She Broke Up a Season's Flirtation and Took Hubby Home With Her.

DIDN'T WAIT TO PUT ON A BATHING SUIT.

The Girl Who Was With the Husband Remained in the Water Until the Couple Had Gone Away and Her Nose Was Blue.

A handsome woman, dressed in the mode, astonished the folks at Bergen Beach the other afternoon by wading into the surf in pursuit of a man who was in a bathing costume. He evidently didn't want to engage in close conversation for he swam away as rapidly as possible. When she saw she couldn't reach him she shook her parasol defiantly and waded back to the beach with a ruined and dripping costume. As the woman is a particularly well-known soubrette, it will be just as well to lay this interesting story in scenes.

The first scene is laid in a fashionable apartment house on Broadway, where the soubrette—who, by the way, is really and truly married—lives with her husband. He was the man who did the swimming act.

He remarked to her in that casual way which many husbands can assume so well that it was necessary for him to absent himself for the day on a matter of urgent business. He added that Harlem was his objective point, and that it was barely possible he would not be home until very late. "I may not be home until 11 o'clock tonight," said he, "so you'd better go to your sister's for dinner. Perhaps you'd better not wait up for me."

The trusting, confiding wife took this tale at par value, and in her mind there was nothing of doubt and distrust. Garbing herself in fine raiment and adorning herself with her chastest hat she set forth to call upon her sister.

Her sister, who lives in Twelfth street, had other ideas about the dinner part of the programme. She suggested that inasmuch as it was a pleasant day and more agreeable on the beach, where the winds might toy with their tresses and the wavelets lave their feet, they go to Bergen Beach for dinner and take a surf bath afterward. This excellent project was unanimously voted as the next business in order, and the soubrette and her sister set sail for Bergen Beach.

The dinner was satisfactory, and after having completed that part of the scheme for the day's outing the two women strolled along the beach. Suddenly the sister called the soubrette's attention to a man and woman walking down the beach in bathing suits.

"Do you know, Maude, I believe that's your husband," she said.

Which remark sounded the death knell of hubby's happiness for that day. The wife cast one identifying look upon him and then started in wild pursuit. By that time, however, he had dived into the middle of a big breaker and was confidently telling the charming young woman how pleasant it was to be out there in the big ocean with nothing to annoy them.

Then the wife sent her soprano voice echoing across the watery waste and the husband after one horrified glance dived and stayed below. Just as the onlookers were beginning to believe that he never would come up he reappeared and plaintively begged his wife to go to the hotel and wait for him.

"If you don't I never will come out."

"If you don't I'll come in after you," said she, suiting the action to the word.

In her street dress and ostrich tipped hat she started boldly out into the ocean and followed her husband until she was up to her armpits, and a long way from shore. Meanwhile a large crowd had collected to watch the developments of the domestic comedy. The husband capitulated, however, and promised to come out.

"I just met her as I was going down to the water," said the erring man, penitently.

But a moment later he was confounded and confused by the revelation of his thoughtlessness. When the envelope containing his valuables was handed to him it was torn from his hand by his wife, who found in it the purse and watch of his fair companion.

The soubrette was fitted out with dry clothes by a friend, and she shortly thereafter took her recalcitrant husband home with her.

The other girl, it was noticed, remained in the water for about five hours with just the tip of her nose, blued by the chill, showing above the water, fearing to venture out while there was danger of the energetic actress being in the vicinity.

"The next time you go away on business I'll go with you," wifely was heard to remark as the twain started home.

A Nervy Woman Assisted in a Hold-up.

The new woman has made herself felt in the town of Dayton, O., in a distinctively novel role, according to the report of a well-known citizen who was the victim of footpads, one of whom was a female, neatly attired in black. The man stated to the police that he was walking to his home at Home avenue and Summit street at midnight, and had reached a point on National avenue, near Fifth, when he saw a man and a woman approaching him. In another moment he found himself prone on the ground, having been tripped by the man. The woman then leveled a revolver at his head while he was lying on his back, and her male companion rifled his pockets, cautioning him to remain quiet until the act was completed. Before leaving

BROOKSIDE BOWLING ALLEYS.

[WITH PHOTO.]

The Brookside Bowling Alleys at 1927-29 Pearl street, Cleveland, O., are the finest alleys in the State. Mr. John D. Glock is the principal stockholder and manager of the alleys. He was born June 13, 1869. He has always taken great interest in all sporting matters, and was at one time considered one of the best pool players in the city. Of late he is devoted to the bowling game.

The "Police Gazette Bartender's Guide" for 1901 will give you the information you are looking for. The price is only 25 cents, postpaid. A mine of information, and is a good bowler. He is a member of the Brookside Bowling Club. He can be found at his place of business, on Pearl street, any afternoon or evening, and is always ready to entertain his friends in a friendly game. The Brookside alleys have been remodeled recently and are now second to none in the city. John says the addition of the rounded gutters has made a great improvement in the scores of his patrons, and that should any of the crack bowlers of the city call to roll a game they will not hesitate to have the games published.

BURT CHADWICK.

Burt Chadwick, who owns a saloon at Clyde, O., says he is ready to meet any 135-pound man in the world to wrestle catch-as-catch-can style for any amount of money. That's brief and to the point, and it is to be hoped he will get a match on quickly.

THE BATTLE OF THE PETS.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

The girls of a certain burlesque company, who thought a rabbit couldn't fight, lost their money to the wise ones in Milwaukee recently. From the story which is told it seems that two of the chorus girls had pets—one a bright little monkey and the other a white rabbit. Both animals were looked upon as mascots and treated with the greatest possible consideration.

There were times when the monkey would pull the rabbit's ears and otherwise annoy it, but for a long while Bunny never resented any of these little familiarities. But Bunny's mistress objected, and knowing the temper of the beast, suggested a match to a finish. They had it out in the greenroom. Both animals were teased until they were ready for anything, and then they were turned loose upon each other. The monkey set the pace and it looked for a while as if the rabbit was going to have a quick finish, when suddenly the usually inoffensive little animal cut

PRETTY GIRL

OF MACON, GA.,

SOLD FOR $300

She Fled When She Learned of the Bargain.

A HEARTLESS MOTHER.

The Transaction Was Not Completed and the Girl is With Friends.

One of the strangest cases the police of Macon, Ga., have had to deal with in some years came to light the other morning.

According to the story which comes from the South it is alleged that some weeks ago a respectable white woman, who lived in Columbus, O., sold her young and pretty daughter for $300 to a man living in that city.

The money was paid in advance, the mother of the girl assuring the purchaser that she had obtained the consent of the girl, and that she would have no trouble in delivering what the man had paid for. After the man had paid the money, however, it developed that the woman was mistaken, the girl, who is beautiful and very intelligent, refusing to be delivered to her purchaser.

As soon as the girl found that she had been sold to a man as a merchant sells an article of merchandise she fled from home. She landed in Macon a few days ago, and found work. A few days later the heartless mother followed the girl to that city, and at once sought to have her return to Columbus and take up with the man to whom she had been sold. The girl refused to return, and when her mother attempted to force her to do so the girl explained the situation to some ladies with whom she had become acquainted since arriving at Macon. The ladies succeeded in getting the girl, who is about fifteen years of age, in a reformatory. The mother of the girl learned that her daughter had been placed in this institution, and immediately she began to lay plans to steal her child. She made repeated visits to the place in disguise, and each time was refused admittance.

Finally the police authorities were notified, and the mother of the unfortunate girl was arrested. She was arraigned before Judge Freeman on a charge of disorderly conduct. The girl appeared as the witness against her mother, and told of how she had been sold, and of attempts her own mother had made to compel her to live with the man to whom she was sold. Other witnesses were introduced to substantiate what the daughter said, and the presiding Judge sentenced the woman to serve six months. The girl has been returned to the reformatory, where she will be kept until it is definitely known that her mother has not succeeded in partly carrying out her purpose. The good people of the city have taken a keen interest in the girl, and she will be well cared for.

The accompanying picture shows one of the famous marksmen of the United States army, Corporal Ross J. Webb, Company A, Fourteenth Infantry, Fort Brady, Mich. Corporal Webb made his remarkable record at the recent target practice of his company at the United States target range, near Rexford, Mich. After having rendered the acquisition of the grade of sharpshooter a certainty by his record up to and including the 1,000-yard range, he made the unprecedented score of 100 out of a possible 100 on one of the skirmish runs. Corporal Webb is a native of Ohio and served in the Sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry during the Spanish-American war, and later enlisted in the regular army and was assigned to Company L, Fourteenth Infantry, and later transferred to Company A upon that company's return to the States in May, 1900.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY SHOT TWICE

WHILE HOLDING A RECEPTION AT THE BUFFALO EXPOSITION

BY A CLEVELAND, O., ANARCHIST

The Assassin Fired at the Executive As He Reached Out to Shake Hands With Him During a Monster Levee

HE WAS BADLY BEATEN AND JUST ESCAPED A LYNCHING

Many Arrests Made in Buffalo and Chicago of Anarchists who are Said to Have Instigated the Crime

An assassin, who later confessed that he was an Anarchist, shot twice at President McKinley at Buffalo, N. Y., on the afternoon of September 6, and wounded him twice, once in the groin and once in the chest. Five minutes before the tragedy the crowd in and about the Temple of Music was in the most cheerful humor. When the President's carriage, containing besides the Executive, Mr. Milburn, president of the Pan-American Exposition, and Mr. Cortelyou, the President's private secretary, drove up to the side entrance, it was met by a mighty salute of cheers and applause.

The three gentlemen alighted and were escorted to the door of the building. A carriage containing George Foster and S. R. Ireland, secret service men, drove up at once, and these, with several other detectives, also entered the building. The President was met by Director-General Buchanan.

From the main entrance to the temple, which opens on the esplanade, where thousands had gathered, an aisle had been made through the rows of seats in the building to near the centre. This aisle was about eight feet wide and turned near the centre to the southwest door of the temple.

It was so arranged that the persons who wished to shake hands with the President would enter by the southeast door, meet the President in the centre and then pass out of the southwest door. Where the aisle made the turn in the centre tall palms and green plants were placed, so the President stood under a bower. Both sides of the aisle were lined with strips of purple bunting.

From the southeast door and extending up to and around the curve on either side was a line of soldiers from the Seventy-third Seacoast Artillery, interspersed with neatly uniformed Exposition guards under the command of Captain Damer.

When the Presidential party entered the building the soldiers came to "Attention." The President was escorted to the centre of the palm bower, and Mr. Milburn took a position on his left so as to introduce persons as they came in.

Mr. Milburn ordered the door opened, and immediately a wavering line of people, who had been squeezed against the outside of the door for hours, began to move up through the line of soldiers and police to where the President stood. An old man with silvery white hair was the first to reach the President, and a little girl he carried on his shoulder received a warm salutation.

W. J. Gompf, an organist, started on Bach's sonata in F, low at first, and swelling gradually until the auditorium was filled with the melodious tones of the great organ.

Secretary Cortelyou stood at the President's right. Foster, a Secret Service man, who has travelled everywhere with the President, took a position not more than two feet in front of Mr. Milburn, and Ireland, another Secret Service man, stood by his left, so that he was the same distance in front of the President. Detectives were scattered through the aisle.

Through a narrow two-foot passage those who would meet the President must pass. When all was prepared the President smiled to Mr. Buchanan, who was standing near the corporal in charge of the artillerymen, and said that he was ready.

He seemed very jovial, and as he waited for the doors to open he rubbed his hands together, adjusted his Prince Albert coat, and laughingly chatted with Mr. Milburn, while Secretary Cortelyou, gave a few last instructions to the officers as to the way the crowd was to be hurried through, so that as many as possible could meet the President.

As each passed he was critically scanned by the Secret Service men. His hands were watched, his face and actions noted.

Far down the line a man of unusual aspect appeared. He was short, heavy and dark, and beneath a heavy dark mustache were straight, bloodless lips. Under his black brows gleamed sharp, black eyes. He was picked out at once as a suspicious person, and when he reached Foster, the secret service man kept his hand on him until he reached the President and clasped his hand. Ireland was equally alert, and the slightest move on the part of this man, who is now supposed to have been an accomplice, and for whom a search is being made, would have been checked by the officers.

Immediately following this man was the assassin. He was a rather tall, boyish looking fellow, apparently twenty-five years old, and of German-American extraction. His smooth, rather pointed face would not indicate any sinister purpose.

The secret service men noted that about his right hand was wrapped a handkerchief, and as he carried the hand uplifted, as if supported by a sling under his coat, the officers thought his hand was injured, and into the opening of his shirt front, near the heart, and said:

"This wound pains greatly." As the President withdrew his hand two fingers were covered with blood. He looked at them, his hand dropped to his side and he became faint. His head dropped heavily to his chest and those about him turned away.

During this pathetic scene, while tears were filling the eyes of those about him, who realized their powerlessness to help him, Minister Aspiroz, of Mexico, pushed through the little group and broke the faint into which the President had sunk by exclaiming dramatically in English:

"Oh, my God, Mr. President, are you shot?" While the excited diplomat was being restrained especially since he extended his left hand across the right to shake hands with the President. It was noticed that the man in front of the assassin held back, apparently to shield the young man, so that it was necessary for Ireland to push him on.

Innocently facing the assassin, the President smiled as he extended his right hand to meet the left of the supposed injured man. As the youth extended his left hand, he, quick as a flash, as if trained by long practice, whipped out his right hand, which held the revolver, and before anyone knew what was happening two shots rang out, one following the other after the briefest space of time.

For a moment there was the hush of awful death. There was not a sound. The sonata died instantly. The people stopped and could not breathe. The next instant there was pandemonium. It was realized that the President had been shot.

Mr. McKinley drew his right hand quickly to his chest. He raised his head, and his eyes looked upward and rolled. He swerved a moment, reeled and fell in the arms of Secretary Cortelyou.

Catching himself for the briefest second the President, whose face had now the whiteness of death, looked at the assassin, as the officers and the soldiers bore him to the floor, and said feebly, "May God forgive him."

The President was carried first one way, then a step in another direction. The excitement was so sudden and intense that for a minute no one knew what to do.

Finally some one said to carry him within the purple edge of the aisle and seat him on a chair. The bunting was in a solid piece, no one had time to produce a knife. A couple of men tore the benches aside and trampled the bunting down, while Mr. Milburn and Secretary Cortelyou half carried the President over the line into the passageway leading to the stage.

The President was able to walk a little, leaning heavily on his escort. In passing over the bunting his foot caught, and for a moment he stumbled. A reporter extricated the wounded man's foot, and he was carried to a seat, where a half dozen men stood by and fanned him vigorously. Quick calls were sent for doctors and an ambulance.

While seated for a moment Secretary Cortelyou leaned over the President and asked: "Do you feel much pain?"

White and trembling, the President slipped his hand from caressing the Executive and falling at his feet, the President replied, gasping after each word:

"Yes—I believe—I am."

The President's head fell backward and he almost fainted again. Mr. Milburn placed his hand back of the wounded man's head for a support. This seemed to relieve the President, and after that he sat stolidly in the chair, his legs spread out on the floor and his lips clinched firmly as if to fight determinedly against death, should it be coming. He was making the fight of a soldier, and more than one turned away and tremblingly said:

"He is certainly a soldier." While all this was passing the tragedy had not yet ended on the scene of the shooting. The shots had hardly been fired before Foster and Ireland were on top of the assassin. Ireland knocked the smoking weapon from the man's hand and with his companion and a dozen Exposition police and artillerymen were upon the wretch. He was literally crushed to the floor.

While the President was being led away the artillerymen and guards cleared the building of those who had come to greet the Executive. To do this it was necessary to draw their bayonets and use force.

Foster reached under the crowd and by almost superhuman strength pulled the intending murderer from under the heap. Forcing the youth to the open, Foster clutched him by the throat with his left hand, and saying, "You murderer," he struck him a vicious blow with his fist squarely in the face.

The blow was so powerful that the man was sent headlong through the guards and sprawling upon the floor. He had hardly touched the floor when he was again set upon, this time by the guards and soldiers. He was kicked repeatedly until Captain Damer rushed in and drew back the guards. Foster made another attempt to get at the assassin but was held back although he protested that he knew what he was doing.

One who stood near the captive declares that the would-be murderer cried:

"I am an anarchist! I did my duty!"

He was not given time to say another word, and it is doubtful if he would have had the power. He was as white as his victim, and was shaking from head to foot. He had not the power to beg to be saved from the lynchers.

Weak with the excitement, he was unable to stand on his feet, and he fell to the floor like a weak coward.

A half dozen guards, as many soldiers and several Secret Service men grabbed him as they would an offensive corpse. Several were at his feet and others at his head, but none to support his body. He was rapidly dragged over the floor, up a short flight of stairs and into a room back of the stage. There he was locked in with the soldiers, guards and detectives, most of whom drew their revolvers, ready to withstand any attempt which might be made by a mob.

With tremendous rapidity the news of the assassin's assault spread through the 20,000 people who were outside the building. Their cries of grief could be heard inside, and the President heard and seemed to understand, though he spoke no word.

The electric ambulance from the Emergency Hospital quickly arrived with Drs. Zittel and Kennerson, who rushed in and were at the side of the President. His white vest, powder marked and bloody, had been opened, as well as the shirt. After seeing the location of the wound and learning that another bullet had entered the abdomen, they ordered in the ambulance stretcher, on which were placed a row of pillows. The stretcher was placed on the floor and the wounded President was lifted by Mr. Milburn, Mr. Cortelyou and the ambulance men, and laid gently on the pillows.

The President groaned slightly, as if in great pain, but recovered, pressed his lips firmly and resigned himself to the care of the grief-stricken men around him. At least twenty men carried the stretcher up the three or four steps to the southwest door.

As it opened and the great crowd caught a glimpse of the wounded man on the stretcher a groan of grief went up. Men uncovered their heads, they looked at each other for sympathy, that they might have the strength to stand the crushing blow.

No man was weak who wept. It was the time for weeping. There was not the slightest cry for vengeance. As the bullet pierced body the President was being carried out through their midst the note was only of sorrow. Women were no more affected than men. They clung close to each other. It was a moment when every one felt that he needed help.

On the double quick the President was hurried to the Emergency Hospital, where a room had been hastily prepared for him. Messages had been sent to the city for physicians and surgeons. The first call was sent for Dr. Huxey, the family physician, who had left the grounds with Mrs. McKinley for the Milburn home. He was quick to arrive on an automobile with two trained nurses. They tore through the grounds at a terrific pace until the hospital was reached.

At six o'clock the President was put under influence of an anaesthetic and Dr. Parke began probing for the bullet. The first one was removed. It struck the sternum and glanced off, causing a slight flesh wound only. The second bullet perforated both walls of the stomach and has not yet been found. The bullet is thought to be in the stomach.

President McKinley was later placed in an automobile ambulance and taken to the home of President Milburn.

The man who shot the President said his name was Leon Czolgosz, and admitted that he was a Cleveland, O., Anarchist.

PERMIT ISSUED FOR FIGHT

—BY SAN FRANCISCO AUTHORITIES WITHOUT PROTEST—

BETWEEN JEFFRIES AND RUHLIN

Everything Now Points to the Battle Being Fought for the Heavyweight Championship Early in November.

SHARKEY GIVES HIS OPINION OF THE OUTCOME.

Expects to be the Logical Contender for the Title---Fighting Runs in the McGovern Blood---How a Handy Girl Resented an Insult.

The little incidental details which make it appear as if the pending match between Jim Jeffries and Gus Ruhlman would eventuate in something more than talk are being arranged to the satisfaction of everybody who has the slightest interest in the affair. At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors held the other day a permit to hold the fight was granted to the Twentieth Century Club. There was no opposition and none was expected.

The date has not, however, been definitely determined upon, notwithstanding the report that the event would be held on Nov. 8, but from the directors of the club it was learned that the date has yet to be selected.

While Nov. 8 might be satisfactory to the fighters, the club officials look upon it as unsatisfactory, because it would bring it too close to Election Day, which absorbs the public mind for a week or more. The fight will probably be held nearer Nov. 15.

Now that the permit has been granted Champion Jeffries will be expected to post his forfeit of $2,500 right away. Ruhlman's manager seems to be more anxious than is the club. He wrote to Manager Gleason of the matter. He argues that if Jeffries should hurt his hand or sustain some other injury while trying to beat boxers in four rounds, and for that reason want to avoid Ruhlman, it would be easy enough for him to break the articles of agreement without any cost to himself, and he wants Ruhlman protected.

While it may be nothing but tardiness on the part of Jeffries, still his dalliance in getting his forfeit into the stakeholder's hands looks bad, and can have no salutary effect in establishing confidence as to the champion's sincerity. Jeffries has started on a tour of the southern part of California and expects to be gone about ten days.

Neither man has as yet started active training; both are taking light exercise daily.

Ruhlman will probably give a few boxing exhibitions with his partner, "Denver Ed" Martin, before he gets down to hard work. In doing this the Akron giant is taking chances. He and Martin are in the habit of mixing it up rather lively at times for the amusement of the spectators, and in one of these set-tos Ruhlman might accidentally hurt his hands. An injury of this kind would prove to be a big handicap to him in the ring, as the articles stipulate that bandages shall not be used. Ruhlman should take the best of care not to injure himself in any way, for it is now that he has the chance of his life to win the title of heavyweight champion of the world.

It is now a settled fact that George Siler will not referee the contest. The principals and club officials will have to decide on a man from San Francisco, and it is thought that Jack Welch will be selected. Welch is well known in boxing circles on the coast, and is considered competent to officiate. Considering the many jobs that have been perpetrated on the public at Frisco, the referee question is one of great importance, and an honest man is what is most needed. Welch fills the bill from all accounts, and will likely be first choice with the fighters, if they cannot bring Siler there to act.

Tom Sharkey paused in Philadelphia the other day long enough to deluge the newspapers with statements. Among those which were deemed sufficiently important to appear in cold type I noticed the following: "I am going out to San Francisco soon to be on hand for the Jeffries-Ruhlman fight and I will challenge the winner. Jeffries will lick the big Dutchman in five time. He will punch so many holes in him that Gus will look like a bit of ancient sweetener cheese. Then I guess Jeff will give me another fight, and I will certainly defeat him this time."

Somehow or other Sharkey's talk always recalls to me the words of a pathetic little song which was featured in vaudeville houses a few years ago, the chorus of which went like this:

"More work for the undertaker,
Another little job for the casket-maker;
In the local cemetery they
Are very, very busy on a new made grave
And on the tombstone—"

Well, "Sharkey!" will do about as well as anything!

"Terry McGovern denies that he was knocked out by an actor, Arthur Cadmus by name, at Coney Island last Wednesday. He does not know Cadmus, he says, and has not been at the scene of assault in two weeks. Terry wired this denial from Pittsburgh."—Exchange.

It wasn't Terry, but a perfect lady, who claimed to be Terry's sister, who indulged in the scrap with Cadmus. At the police examination she claimed that Cadmus made a remark which no lady could listen to without blushing, and her outraged sense of delicacy was only relieved by reaching for the offender and walloping him in the eye. Proof of the efficacy of the treatment was apparent when Cadmus appeared in court the following day.

The eye was a beaut! Terry has a sister to be proud of.

The following interesting letter explains itself:

WORCESTERSHIRE, England, Aug. 26, 1901.

DEAR SIR—I am writing you on behalf of Billy Plimmer, who is desirous of once more visiting the States before finally retiring. I would like to arrange four or five six-round contests with George Dixon, as he is of the opinion that it would be a big draw in any city where it would be allowed. He would want a guaranteed sum and the promoters could make what they liked out of it. Will you kindly see what can be done in the matter and cable if you want him in a hurry. He would require $250 for expenses, and further and proper arrangements could be made when he arrived on your side. A syndicate might be formed to run the contests, either alone or in conjunction with others. If expenses are cabled he will leave here by first available boat. I shall accompany Plimmer, should he cross to your side. Plimmer will sign this as a guarantee. His address is 124 Frederick Road, Aston, Birmingham, England. Kind regards to Mr. Fox; best wishes to yourself. Yours ever, J. FRANK BRADLEY.

BILLY PLIMMER.

It is difficult to believe that a gentleman like Mr. Bradley, whom I know to be thoroughly well posted in all matters pertaining to boxing, should be so lacking in judgment as to think for a single instant that a bout or series of bouts such as he proposes would be at all attractive from a gate money point of view. He must know as well as I do that Plimmer is prime, so far as his form and ability as a boxer is concerned, and as for poor little Dixon, he has become a target for every crossroad anxious to use the credit of a draw with him as a stepping stone to greater fame. Dixon is "all in" and compelled to work, notwithstanding that his career of usefulness as a fighter has long since passed the period mark. The infrequency with which I see Plimmer's name mentioned in fighting affairs in England leads me to believe that he is in precisely the same condition of affairs in England as Dixon is in America. Over here a lot of sympathy has been extended to the misguided, unfortunate little hero—the greatest of his time—and he gets an occasional match, but it is evident that Plimmer has lost caste with the English matchmakers, for he never does get a chance to fight.

A four or six-round affair between Plimmer and Dixon "wouldn't draw thirty cents," as they say in sporting parlance, and as for a syndicate being formed for the purpose of handling such an event—well that is simply a ridiculous proposition; laughable, in fact, did it come from any one but Mr. Bradley, who I must perforce believe has been influenced by misrepresentations regarding the real condition of pugilistic affairs in America at the present time.

If the negotiations for a fight between "Kid" Parker and Young Corbett go through, Denver, Col., will be the scene of one of the most interesting affairs that could be brought off. Everything hinges upon the time for weighing in and the weight to be made. Corbett is holding out for 133 pounds at 3 o'clock, while Parker insists upon 135 pounds at 6 o'clock. Unless this difficulty can be overcome there seems to be little prospect of an agreement. Each side insists that it is the other that is preventing a match being made, and that an agreement will probably be reached in a day or two. As an incentive to the other fellows to hurry up, Corbett is beginning to talk of taking a trip to Chicago, not in an effort to find a match, but to pay a visit to that city.

If these two are brought together the affair will without doubt attract the biggest audience ever seen in Denver, and fighting on the percentage basis would net the fighters a large winning end.

Somebody ought to take poor old Joe Goddard aside and whisper words of caution into his ear before his malady reaches a stage when his reasoning faculties may become impaired. The "grand old warrior of the prize ring," as my esteemed colleague and friend "Slick" delights in calling him, has grown tired of waiting for something to turn up in the boxing line, and will go in for pedestrianism. Goddard has entered for the coming six-days' go-as-you-please match to be held in Philadelphia during the week of October 8, and is in earnest when he says he thinks he has a chance of

ARTIE SIMMS

WHIPPED "KID" THOMAS.

IN GOOD STYLE

Looks Like a Possible Light-Weight Champion.

CLEVER AND GAME LAD

It looks as if Artie Simms, of Akron, O., would eventually be a factor in the disposition of premier light-weight honors, judging from the way he is going down the line, beating all kinds of fighters who oppose him. At New Britain, Conn., on Sept. 5, it took just thirteen rounds for him to completely demonstrate his superiority over "Kid" Thomas, of New York. They had been matched to go twenty rounds at 133 pounds, but at no period of the contest did Thomas show that he was a dangerous opponent for Simms.

The latter landed his left on Thomas' face with wonderful rapidity, causing his nose to bleed and his face to puff. Simms hit Thomas seven times in the ninth round, fifteen times in the tenth, all left-hand blows, and received only some light body blows in return.

When the "Kid" saw that he had no chance of winning he attempted foul tactics, striking so low that he was frequently warned by the referee. Simms took it all good-naturedly and smiled at Thomas' efforts.

When the gong sounded for the opening of the thirteenth round Simms rushed at Thomas, beat him to a standstill and knocked him down with a right hand smash on the jaw.

Thomas did not wait for the count, but jumped to his feet and crossing over to Simms struck him low. Simms countered on the head and in the clinch that followed Referee Willis had to separate them. He sent the men to their corners and gave the decision to Simms on a foul.

The latter was not satisfied with winning that way, and before he could be stopped rushed at Thomas and began hammering him with right and left. The wildest excitement prevailed until the men were separated. Thomas was pretty badly used up.

In the preliminary, "Spider" Clark, of Hartford, knocked out Morris Miller, also of Hartford, in the fourth round.

HOW IS THIS?

I still desire to continue as a subscriber of the POLICE GAZETTE. I must say it has helped me in my business. I am running a saloon and keep it on file for the boys.

Yours truly,
T. W. BATCH, Blue Earth, Minn.

POLICE REFEREED THE FIGHT.

The Toronto, Ont., police proved themselves to be rather expert judges of fighting, for in the eleventh round of the battle between Tim Kearns, of Boston, and Martin Duffy, of Chicago, before the Crescent Club, on September 5, they interfered. The referee declared Duffy the winner.

From the first to the last the fight was virtually a series of clinches, apparently a wrestling match. The police warned the backers and the referee that it was no glove fight, and finally in the eleventh round a cessation of hostilities, an order promptly obeyed, and then the referee decided for Duffy as stated.

AFRAID OF FELTZ'S PUNCHES.

Jimmy Kelly, of Boston, is a long way from being a pugilistic wonder. At Savannah, Ga., on September 5, Tommy Feltz, of Brooklyn, won the decision over him in a twenty-five round bout. Kelly had the advantage in height, reach and weight, but Feltz was the cleverer and won on points.

The bout was principally a running match, as Kelly was afraid of the stiff punches that Feltz gave him from time to time, and so kept up a sprinting match, though occasionally, when cornered, he showed that he could fight and landed good and strong.

Both men were in first-class condition, so that the punishment that each received did not show to any extent. There were no knockdowns, nor was there any blood spilled. Feltz showed up so much the cleverer that after the first few rounds there was never any doubt but that he would get the decision unless a chance blow should put him out.

SPORTING NOTES.

Archie McEachern, of Canada, beat Champion, the French rider, in a twenty-five-mile paced race, recently at Queen's Park, Montreal, in 39:19, a Canadian record.

Nancy Hanks, 2:04, is the first queen of trotters that ever produced a high-class performer. Lady Suffolk, 2:29½; Highland Maid, 2:27, and Flora Temple, 2:19½, left nothing of note.

Pitcher Taylor, of New York, is having trouble with his arm. Christy Mathewson is also laid up with a bad arm. It is hinted that the great pitcher has been worked into a condition of collapse.

C. A. McCully seems to be as great a success as a managing secretary of race meetings as he was as a turf writer. Every one was loud in his praise as to the way the Brighton Beach meeting was handled.

The big pacing money winners down the Grand Circuit are Audubon Boy, $8,500; Dan Patch, $7,000 (including Brighton, $8,200); Shadow Chimes, $4,170 (including Brighton, $6,670); New Richmond, $3,200.

Billy Hart, Baltimore.—Offer your services to any training stable at Sheepshead Bay as an exercise lad; if you prove capable you will get employment.

J. L. G., New York.—Are there any swimming schools in New York city?.....Brann's Baths, Sixty-fifth street, East river. Fifty cents a lesson.

J. W. C., Antlers, I. T.—Write to M. H. Grossman, Pulitzer Building, New York City. Will investigate and file claim. Mention POLICE GAZETTE.

Dr. P. G., Kankakee, Ill.—I made a bet of $10 that the word charge doesn't mean lay down when applied to a dog. I bet drop was the word used?.....All depends

C. W. R., Live Oak, Fla.—Give me the address of some good musical conservatory in New York city?.....Carnegie Hall, Fifty-seventh street and Seventh avenue.

C. W. W., Charter Oak, Ia.—A bet B that Bryan will have 125,000 less popular votes in 1900 than in 1896. Which wins?.....In 1896, 6,502,925. In 1900, 6,358,788. A wins. 144,136.

J. I. W., Chicora, Miss.—Do you know where I could buy a St. Bernard puppy?.....Write to James Mortimer, Superintendent Westminster Kennel Club, New York city.

E. S., Paloma, Cal.—A bets B that five aces beat five sixes in razzle dazzle dice. Who wins?.....Sixes win unless an agreement that aces were high before the throwing began.

G. K., Chicago, Ill.—A says Dexter paced a mile in 2:03½ in the year 1887, and B says not; which is right?.....A is wrong. He was a trotter not a pacer and 2:17½ was best his time.

F. H., Lowell, Mass.—Give me the address of Bob Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher as I would like to make a wrestling match with them?.....Care POLICE GAZETTE. Letters will be forwarded.

B. H. St. Joe, Mich.—I am a slack wire walker and I have stayed on the wire 45 minutes. Is that a record or did any one ever beat that?.....Never heard of it. Guess you're the "real thing."

Dice, Newark, N. J.—In throwing poker dice, A bets B that ace, king, queen, jack and ten beats ace, king, queen, jack and nine, one throw out of the box, and straights don't count?.....A wins.

S. B., Washington, D. C.—A says that he weighs 110 pounds; B bets he doesn't weigh 110 pounds; A got on scales and weighs 116 pounds. Who wins?.....Technically A wins. He weighs 110 and more; how much more doesn't enter into the argument.

S. P. C. W.—What horse has the mile running record in the United States; was it circular track?.....Brigadier, 1:37 4-5, at Sheepshead Bay, June 22, 1901. Mile course at this track begins in a chute and has one turn.

C. C. A., Isola, Miss.—I have a violin which I think is one of the Antone Stradivarius made in 1449. A. D., please let me know if they are worth anything above market value of violins?.....A real Stradivarius has a handsome value, but you will find it hard to convince a purchaser of its genuineness, so many imitations have been discovered, all bearing "fake" marks, dates, etc.

F. E. S., Athens, Ore.—Simpson bets Wells that a Ute Indian ran 100 yards at Hot Springs, Ark., in 9 seconds flat; which wins? In making the wager it was not stipulated that I was to name any one or at any certain place that such a run was made, but simply bet Wells that a man run 100 yards in 9 seconds, and as I read it in three different papers I don't think I can be mistaken. You will bear in mind for me to win the wager it does not become necessary for the run mentioned to go down on record, but sufficient that the Indian run the 100 yards in the time mentioned by me?.....The matter appeared in the papers but was never authenticated. No man on earth has ever run 100 yards in that time, and the POLICE GAZETTE challenges anybody to produce proof if the timing was accurately done and the distance correct.

BERT C. ROBERTS.

LABOR DAY ROUGH SPARRING.

At a picnic held at Trenton, N. J., on Labor Day, by the American Federation of Labor, there were two grand exhibitions of the manly art. The main event was between Ed Martin, of Passaic, N. J., and the clever Young Turner, of Phoenixville, Pa. The affair was of the rough house order, both fighting all the time, with honors about even, until the eighth round, when Turner fouled Martin, losing the fight. The preliminary of eight rounds was between Jimmy Bounds, of Trenton, N. J., and "Kid" Beebe, of Philadelphia. This was also a fast and furious fight. Beebe in the third round knocked Bounds off the stage. At the end of the eighth round, the bout was declared a draw.

DISGUSTED SPORTS AT THIS FIGHT

A select crowd of Cincinnati fight lovers was given a wild chase the other afternoon in hopes of getting to see what was expected to be a rattling fight to a finish. The tip was given out that the fight would take place shortly after dinner, and many of the sports missed their noonday meal rather than be late for the mill. George Elliott, the colored lightweight of Cincinnati, and Roxy Kanell, the "Dangerous Dago" of Buffalo, were the principals. They have been matched for some time, but failed to get any club to pull off the fight. Their friends decided to have them meet in private and those on the inside were given the tip to assemble at a certain resort from which the crowd was to go to the battle ground. Among others who received the tip was a prominent police official. He suddenly appeared on the scene and warned the sports that if the fight was pulled off in the jurisdiction of the Cincinnati police the principals and every one connected with the affair would be arrested. The promoters decided to go out in the woods and settle the question of supremacy between the men. The crowd repaired to a spot not far from the city limits, but when they got there several moneyed men of the party had dropped out. As there was but little cash in sight for the men to fight for it was agreed to make it a six-round bout instead of a finish battle.

The fighters entered the ring shortly before the supper hour. Elliott was seconded by Lee Hill, Allen Johnson and Jack Robinson. Kanell was looked after by Barney Furey, "Kid" Elbe and Young Glittenham.

Elliott went right after his man, and in a lively mix-up, after about a minute of fighting, sent Kanell to the floor with a right-hander on the jaw. Kanell took the count, but got up again and managed to give Elliott a few hot ones before the bell sounded.

Kanell was very careful in the second round, and although Elliott seemed anxious to land a knockout

ABOUT SPORTS

OF ALL SORTS

Newsy Briefs Concerning Men of Note All Over the Country.

Joe Choyinski appeared last week in a sketch called "The Engagement Ring." This probably means that Joe has given up his part in the prize ring.

"Kid" McCoy has signed articles of agreement not to assault his wife again for thirty days. It took a New York judge to get the "Kid" to put his name to the articles.

George Sutton, the Canadian billiard expert, has accepted the challenge of George Blomson, of New York, to play a match at eighteen-inch balk line, "no shot in," for the championship of America.

"Kid" L'Febre, of Cincinnati, was knocked out in the third round of what was to have been a fifteen-round bout the other night before the Ohio Sporting Club, of Dayton, by "Kid" Grim, of Indianapolis.

The calamity shouters are having a field day because the National League has announced the abrogation of the national agreement to take effect Sept. 30 next. A great deal of powder is being wasted. The National League has simply taken a step that was necessary under existing conditions.

In a ten-round glove contest at Owensboro, Ky., recently, "Kid" Ashe, of Cincinnati, got the decision over Joe Montgomery, of Baltimore.

Terry Edwards, the Brooklyn bantam, defeated Young Nader, an eighteen-year-old Brooklynite, in a fiercely-fought twenty-round battle held in a barn in New Jersey the other night.

William C. Bailey, formerly of Marysville, died at his home in Columbus, O., as the result of an injury received in a friendly boxing match last fall. He was twenty-four years of age.

At Celtic Park, Long Island City, John Flanagan, the champion 16-pound hammer thrower of the world, added new figures to his former record by throwing the missile 171 feet 9 inches.

"Australian" Jimmy Ryan has sufficiently recovered from an operation to make a match with Jack Beauséjour, Joe Choyinski's sparring partner. The contest is for twenty rounds and is to be pulled off in Louisville shortly.

Despite the reports sent out from Buffalo to the effect that Tom Jenkins, the Cleveland man, would wrestle Dan McLeod in Pan-Amville, it is very doubtful if this match will take place. Jenkins says he has signed no agreement to wrestle in Buffalo.

Another American boxer has appeared in London, sailing under the name of Jack Lewis. He wants to meet any 115-pound boxer in England, and pretends to have won a great number of victories in this country. No one ever heard of Lewis in the United States.

Jack O'Brien, of New York, who has made quite an impression among the Denver sports, has signed articles to meet "Kid" Parker, of Denver. The bout is for ten rounds and will be fought before the Colorado A. C., Denver, during the first week in October.

It is reported that the owners of the Milwaukee American league franchise have refused an offer of $42,000 from a syndicate of Cincinnati men, headed by Manager McPhee, for the Milwaukee franchise.

Manager Loftus, of Chicago, is said to have offered to trade Dexter to Cincinnati for Steinfeldt. McPhee has turned him down.

Hahn, Beckley and Crawford are reported to have signed Cincinnati contracts for next season, despite all rumors to the contrary.

Abe Attel, the California pugilist, who fought George Dixon a draw in Denver, is coming East in search of a contest with some of the best featherweights in his class.

After three rounds of fast and furious fighting at Findlay, O., Jimmy Dunn, of Newcastle, Pa., decided he had enough of Biz Mackey's swings, hooks and punches and threw up the sponge.

Robert C. Gregory, known in the baseball world as "Battleship," and who was a member of the Chicago National League team several years ago, was run over by a train and killed at Chenoa, Ill., the other morning.

The Southern Athletic Club, of New Orleans, has offered Tom Jenkins, the champion wrestler, a purse to meet Professor Schoenfeld in a handicap contest some time during the present month. Jenkins has signified his willingness to make the match.

blow, Kanell did his share of fighting without stepping into any more of Elliott's swings. The third round was full of action, but in the remaining three rounds the men were either in clinches or sparring for an opening, and the sport became very tame. The referee declared the bout a draw. Neither man was badly punished. There was only $36 in the purse for the fighters. Kanell's friends want another fight, and Elliott has agreed to take him on.

"NIGGER" BURNS WAS GAME.

A lot of Philadelphia sports saw a fight in private for $250, which took place in the early morning hours at a quiet suburb, between Jack Elston, of Philadelphia, and "Nigger" Burns, of Maryland. When the men stripped Burns was ten pounds overweight, but Elston agreed to fight him anyhow, and took a bet of $50 that he would lick him inside of ten rounds. When they shook hands Jack started in like a whirlwind, and with jab, swing and hook soon had Burns bleeding. The second round was a repetition of the first, Burns seeking the floor twice from heavy stomach blows.

When they came up for the third round Burns was groggy and Elston started in to finish him. He landed right and left on the jaw and left in the stomach. Burns went down but gamely struggled to his feet in nine seconds, his manager seeing he had no chance and desiring to save him from a knockout threw up the sponge. After the bout Burns had to be taken to his hotel in a cab, while Elston, with the exception of a bruise on the side, had not a scratch.

THE POLICE GAZETTE IS THE PEER OF ALL WEEKLIES, SAY OUR MAIL ORDER ADVERTISERS--ARE YOU IN IT?

WELL-KNOWN TONSORIALISTS

Nathan Fasone a Popular and Clever
New York Artist.

Nathan Fasone, who is employed in the shop at 336 Eighth avenue, New York City, owned by Ph. Marragon & Son, is one of the cleverest artists in the business. He has recently returned from his European vacation.

Marragon & Son have three very fine establishments in New York City, the other two being at 303 West Forty-fourth street and 778 Eighth avenue. They do a good business at all of their places and they employ the best workmen in the trade.

Barbers and their assistants are requested to send in their portraits for publication in this column.

TONSORIAL NOTES.

What barber has the best record, anyhow. Are you a good barber? What is your record? W. M. Wilson is a successful tonsorialist of Elkmont, Ala.

All barbers should keep the "Police Gazette" for customers.

J. W. Hoover is one of the best barbers of Marysville, O.

Mack Cummins has a modern shop at Gadsden, Ala.

One of the popular barbers of Gadsden, Ala., is R. B. Chellia.

Albert's is the best known tonsorial parlor in Elizabeth, N. J.

Gibbs & Scott have all the good barber trade of Demopolis, Ala.

M. B. Inman is a prosperous tonsorialist of Fruitdale, Ala.

The boss barber for the town of Atmore, Ala., is J. J. Wiggins.

There is no better barber in Elkmont, Ala., than Ed Wood.

John Griffith has the only shop in Cardiff, Ala. It's a cinch.

P. McGill is one of the leading tonsorialists of Huntsville, Ala.

R. L. Cove, of Elkmont, Ala., has broken a few fine shaving records during his time.

J. W. Hester is one of the best barbers of Columbiana, Ala. He knows his trade.

D. J. Buxton, a tonsorial artist of 207 Milton avenue, Solvay, N. Y., has a fine trade.

Bill Studder is a barber of Berry Station, Ala., who prides himself upon his cleverness.

R. M. Budd, a leading tonsorialist of Lainsburg, Mich., is the owner of The Budd Parlors.

A. M. Nail has gone in business for himself. He is a boss barber of Huntsville, Ala., now.

Charles Massey is now foreman of William Cammerer's tonsorial parlor at Atlantic City, N. J.

How many men have you shaved in an hour, barber? Send the answer to the POLICE GAZETTE.

Try a short subscription for the "Police Gazette." It will cost $1.00 for three months; the halftone supplements are worth that.

Barbers seem to be very modest men, when it comes to getting a little free advertising in as good a paper as the POLICE GAZETTE.

M. Worth, the tonsorialist, of the Hotel Dunlop, Atlantic City, N. J., proved himself quite a singer while at the Foresters of America anniversary.

Frank Ruffo, the well-known proprietor of the Ladies' Barber Shop, Atlantic City, N. J., expects to leave at an early date for the Pan-American Exposition and San Francisco.

Thompson Bolce, who has returned after active service in the Spanish-American war, has opened a fine tonsorial parlor on the corner of Massachusetts and Arctic avenues, Atlantic City, N. J.

Frank Genevise, foreman of one of Anthony M. Ruffo, Jr.'s tonsorial parlors, Atlantic City, N. J.,

has left for New York city, where he was married. After a wedding tour he will return to his post again.

Seraph F. Lillig, the well-known tonsorialist, also president of Master Barbers' Protective Association and City Assessor of the Second District, has had a successful season with his tonsorial parlor at Atlantic City, N. J., and also with his new hotel, The Cardova.

The long established and neatly kept tonsorial parlor at 208 E. 122nd street is noted as being the best equipped in that locality. George Adam is the genial proprietor and his very able assistants are Charlie Adam and Louis—who doesn't know Louis Hollender, the pinocchio authority of that section.
